

Changes Made In LKD Scholarship Program

Revisions in the Little Kentucky Derby scholarship program were announced yesterday by Cynthia Beadell, vice chairman of the LKD Steering Committee.

Major changes include the awarding of scholarships to upper-classmen as well as freshmen and the establishment of an emergency fund for students needing financial aid to complete the academic year.

The $200 netted by the first Little Kentucky Derby in 1957 was applied for two $100 scholarships, given to incoming freshmen.

Last year's derby committee gave 10 $200 freshmen scholarships.

Goal for this year is $5,000. Under the new program, one-half of the recipients of LKD scholarships will be first semester freshmen and the remainder sophomore, junior and senior students.

Freshmen will be selected from the University Scholarship Application List.

Upper classmen will be selected from LKD scholarship applications which are to be submitted to the Steering Committee by May 1 of each year.

Applications for this year are now available at the Bowman Hall lounge, Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain's office, and at the offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women, according to John Proffitt, assistant dean of men.

The LKD Steering Committee will screen applications and select scholarship awardees, subject to the approval of the LKD Advisory Committee.

Half of each scholarship will be awarded during the fall semester and the other half the following spring semester. Amounts of the awards will not be announced until after the running of the Derby on May 9.

A scholarship recipient must maintain a standing of 2.5. Persons failing to make the required standing will forfeit the remainder of their scholarship to the scholarship fund.

An emergency fund will be established this year at a minimum level of $100. Any student in financial need desiring a grant, must make a written application to the Steering Committee. The Steering Committee's decision will then be subject to approval by the advisory committee.

Chapel Construction Proceeds On Schedule

Construction on the Episcopal chapel and student center is proceeding according to schedule, according to Rev. Charles Lawrence, Episcopal chaplain here.

At present the basement is near completion, the supporting arches of the chapel have been raised and brick work on the two-story back section has been begun.

A vari-colored glass window in shades of red and yellow on a blue background will cover almost the whole front of the building, Rev. Lawrence said. The facade itself will be made of brick and stone.

The ceiling of the air-conditioned chapel will be supported by laminated redwood beams.

The main lounge, a sacristy-workroom and a library will be housed on the first floor directly behind the chapel. On the second floor will be a small apartment for a resident seminarian, the chaplain's study and a secretarial office.

A bid of $8,935,000 for the proposed 400-bed hospital was submitted by Foster and Creighton, a Nashville contractor. Cost of the building has been estimated at 12 savings from the hospital construction possibly will put the

and a half million dollars by Meriwether and Marye, Lexington architects.

The bid for the nine-story hospital building includes an outpatient wing and an ambulant patient wing.

Dr. Richardson Noback, vice president of the Medical Center, said yesterday, "We are delighted with the savings and happy that the medical program can be accelerated."

But he emphasized that the final date for letting the bids for the dental clinic would lie with the architects. Bids for the dental clinic, originally scheduled for 1962, might be let in December because of the stepped-up program.

The medical sciences building and power plant for the Medical Center are now under construction. Foster and Creighton also has the contract for the medical sciences building.

First students for the Medical School are scheduled to enter in September, 1960.

Guignol Theater

Tryouts for "The Diary of Anne Frank" will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Guignol Theatre, Mrs. Lolo Robinson, assistant director of the Guignol Theatre, announced yesterday.

The cast includes roles for five women and six men. The play will be produced May 13-16.

Going Up!

The redwood arches of the new Episcopal student center are now in place and the construction of the two-story brick section is progressing rapidly. Because of this headway made by contractors during the Easter holidays the shape of the center is now noticeable.

UL Artist To Discuss Barlach

Dr. Justin Bier, Hite Art Institute director at the University of Louisville, will discuss the work of Ernst Barlach, German sculptor, graphic artist and dramatist at a Humanities Club lecture tonight.

The lecture is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Room 208, Fine Arts Building.

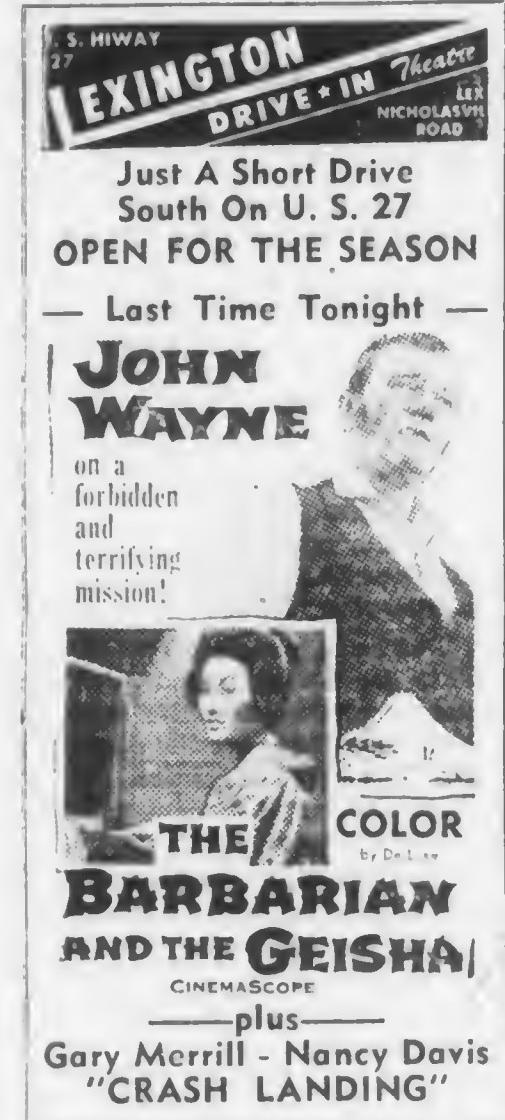

Dr. Bier has published three volumes on the work of Tilman Riemenschneider, a medieval sculptor, and is considered an authority on German sculpture.

During 1930-36, Dr. Bier was curator of the Kostner Society in Hanover, Germany, where he exhibited many of the leading German artists' work.

Among these was one of the first major exhibitions of Barlach's work. He has renewed his interest in Barlach during a recent exchange professorship in Germany. He has published several essays on Barlach.

Dr. Bier has also done research at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N.J.

Burma, formerly a dependency of Great Britain, became an independent republic in 1948.

Scherago To Be Consultant For Tests By Jockey Club

"Horses receive blood transfusions just as people do," says Dr. Morris Scherago, head of the Bacteriology Department.

Dr. Scherago has been appointed consultant to the New York Jockey Club.

The club is conducting tests to study blood types and blood groups found in horses. Dr. Scherago claims, "This is valuable in horses just as it is in human beings."

The purpose of the tests is to make transfusions safer and to determine the parentage of colts.

To analyze the Jockey Club's data, to give procedural advice, and to be available for consultation are some of Dr. Scherago's responsibilities.

His appointment was made upon recommendation by Cornell University.

Eventually it is planned to establish a laboratory in Lexington, under Dr. Scherago's direction, for this type of work.

Dr. Scherago is a member of the Editorial Board of Annals of Allergy and a fellow of the American College of Allergists.

An article by Lawrence S. Thompson, director of UK Libraries, appears in the current issue of "Libri," the International Library Review at Communications, published in Copenhagen, Denmark.

"The Microfacsimile in American Research Libraries," has been used since 1912 when the Library of Congress installed a photostat machine. Today, microprints, microcards and microfilms are extensively used in this country.

Dr. Thompson discusses extensive microfilming methods of the Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Salt Lake City, Utah. The society has sent cameras all over North America and Western Europe to film genealogical source material and now has nearly a million volumes in terms of the equivalent bulk of codex books.

Mercy: Medical Hypocrisy?

As research brings forth an unending stream of new medical discoveries to prolong and protect the lives of its people, America is enjoying, by and large, the fruits of this science to a degree that would have astounded Hippocrates and left Pasteur open-mouthed with awe.

Yet concomitant with these phenomenal medical advances have come equally phenomenal costs of treatment—even with the various hospitalization plans—that often make proper and even necessary medical care prohibitively expensive. For the indigent, it is more often out of the question.

Sunday a local hospital demonstrated the reprehensible inhumanity and needless suffering that can occur when money is more important than mercy, when hospitals—operating like hotels, movie theaters or parking lots—say “You may stay—if you can pay.”

A 2-year-old child had backed into a tub of hot water and received second and third-degree burns over 20 per cent of her body. Her father carried her to a nearby highway, where a passing Fayette County patrolman took them to St. Joseph's Hospital. The child was allowed to lie in the emergency room for 30 minutes—without being given so much as emergency first-aid treatment, according to hospital records—before being removed to Good Samaritan Hospital.

Why? Why should anyone, particularly a baby incapable of offering any argument or of understanding anything but the agony of what the patrolman called “blisters as big as my thumb,” be denied medical care when it is so obviously and desperately needed?

Because, the hospital said, it had orders not to treat burn patients who were unable to pay. Presumably this child's father was in this situation, and even though the necessary medicines and doctors were scant feet away, they were as inaccessible to his child as if they had been in China.

We understand hospitals' high costs of operation and that they must have operating capital, but we cannot understand how anyone professing a shred of humaneness could stand idly by and allow a baby to suffer simply because no one could pay for the 50 cents' worth of ointment needed to give it at least some comfort.

Hospitals still treat indigent cases, of course, and there are still doctors who uncomplainingly get out of bed and travel miles to treat a patient whom they know will provide little, if any, fee. Yet there are more and more cases where hospitals refuse to treat emergency cases and doctors are reluctant to or will not make calls until they are assured of a fat fee. And, too, the healers raise holy Ned when the University gives the faculty flu shots for 50 cents and deprives them of the $3 or $5 fee they get for an injection that costs pennies.

Anyone who is scalped—literally and figuratively—by a surgeon and then protests can hope for little justice. The medico hides behind a plethora of excuses, a favorite of ours being the high costs of his education. Under this theory, a teacher—who, after all, has also sacrificed a great deal getting a Ph.D.—should be able to charge his students $10 for a short consultation.

All of which makes us wonder if some of the medical people shouldn't change the Hippocratic Oath, in which they promise to treat the sick, to something a bit more appropriate.

Like Hypocritical Oath, for instance.

Wedding Of The Year

We saw in yesterday's papers the announcement that Christine Jorgenson, who underwent a rather famous series of operations in 1950 in Denmark, is to be married to a Waukegan, Ill., statistician.

This may pose a problem for society editors, you know. Consider the post-honeymoon notice:

“Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Knox returned from their honeymoon today and will live in Waukegan, where Mr. Knox is a statistician.

“Mrs. Knox is the former Mr. Jorgenson.”

A Bible-Belt Bugaboo

To The Editor:

The University's recent temperance tempest, whipped up by that old Bible-belt bugaboo—booze in the news—was, of course, routinely amusing. No doubt this is what the Kernel and the Lexington dailies intended it to be.

Nevertheless, though rational citizens of the twentieth century are obviously too rare in these backwoods to carry much weight, someone ought to suggest that the University recognize the obvious cultural poverty of its raw material, and at least try to train a few gentlemen whose sophistication might be recognized outside Frog Holler.

Toward that end I suggest a concrete step: a policy toward student drinking that encourages a sensible use and appreciation of the customs of a sophisticated world. By this I mean the University and its community ought to teach students how to drink, not inflame them with rebellious orgiastic impulses by insisting on the horrors of sin inherent in the demon rum.

Drunkenness, of course, is absurd. But among University students it does not reveal depravity so much as it does a pitiful ignorance, no doubt largely encouraged in the freshman bumpkin by bucolic Baptist fanatics bent on “protecting” him from “sin.” Both phenomena are signs of the primitive naivete of a backwoods community—a situation one might hope the University could recognize and correct.

“F. SCOTT FITZGERALD”

Unjust Accusations

To The Editor:

While reading selections from the Readers' Forum in the last few issues, it has become apparent to us that the Kernel has been unjustly accused of sacrilegious practices, i.e., the cartoon printed on March 18: “What Size, Please?”

One question for those who have become enraged—Why? It would appear that people who are so sensitive as to take everything as an insult to their religion do not have a very strong belief in their own personal views.

Also, from the amount of critical letters concerning the cartoon, Christ isn't the only one to bear a cross. Must we all become the organization man, allow no one to express any views because a connotation may be placed on the views in reference to religion?

Granted, the cartoon may have been in bad taste, yet could it be that some of the Kernel's readers are the parties who have bad taste?

Much Ado About...

The Evils of Demon Rum

By GURNEY NORMAN

When one speaks of law breakers, it is usually in a condescending tone, reproachfully, scornfully. For lawbreakers are those impediments to the onward march of society, that minority which is continually obstructing the normal pace of every-day life. “Down with them,” we say, and rightly so.

But right here at the University, the administration for many years has been openly obstructing justice—violating a very definite law of our beloved Commonwealth, to wit: that students be subjected to periodical temperance lectures while assembled in a body. (KRS 158.270. See Kernel, March 19.)

At least since 1955, no such lectures have been held, and, as far as I can determine, they never have in modern times been a regular part of the semester schedule.

With the president required by law to deliver or cause to be delivered at least two temperance lectures a semester, it is amazing that this flagrant disregard for public statute has been allowed to continue unchecked for so long. Consequently, it is no wonder that public drinking on campus is so widespread.

For who is to say which laws we will obey and which we will ignore? Indeed, if citizens have this prerogative, what is to prevent people by the throngs from robbing and looting at their leisure, obeying laws only as they see fit? When one law is ignored, the whole system is weakened, and, unless care is exercised, anarchy may result.

With this thought in mind, I implore the University administration to reconsider their careless, thoughtless, illegal ways, to obey the law, and to rid our campus community of the horrible dregs of the devil's weapon—ALCOHOL. How many mothers, broken from watching their sons become addicted to the brew, might give their very lives if the administration had acted sooner.

But it is not too late. “Some work of noble note may yet be done,” as the poet said. I leave it to your hearts and minds to ponder, administration, deans of men and women, of colleges and schools, vice presidents and presidents alike. Act now.

But there is the ever-present threat that the administration will not be able to stir from its lethargy in time. So who can a righteous-seeking person turn to? There is one last hope. The Student Congress, the voice of the students.

It is up to the congress, second to the administration, to see that the state law is upheld and the lectures delivered, thereby protecting the welfare of the students it represents. If the administration fails to respond to the mounting plea for the much-needed lectures, the congress is legally and morally bound to approach higher authority for a full-scale investigation of the whole University system, and to erase this blot on the University's good name.

The least the congress can do is go on record as favoring the enforcement of the law, which I hereby challenge it to do, at its Monday meeting, in the interest of justice and cleanliness.

If the congress fails to take action on this matter, it can only mean that it is satisfied with the current situation, that it is content to disregard the law. Indeed, inaction here is practically an advocacy that students drink! And what kind of congress is it that promotes so foul a thing as the partaking of liquor? How will you justly conceal that fact from mothers and fathers who plan to send their young children to the state university to be educated?

Probably the mass of students asking for the lectures would settle for only one a semester, rather than lose out altogether. Anyway, the true character of our University people will reveal itself shortly, depending upon their handling of this situation.

Please, SC and administration, do not let us down.

The problem was not that Marty had fallen in love with a shirt. After all, he was a Philosophy major.

The trouble was . . . Marty was in love with two shirts.

With Shirt No. 1, the Van Heusen Century, the serious Marty spent hours in heavenly bliss. He worshipped the revolutionary soft collar that won't wrinkle ever. It was Century's one-piece construction that drove him wild. (Other collars never did anything for our boy Marty, except wrinkle madly. You see, other collars are three pieces, fused or sewn together.)

With Shirt No. 2, the amazing Van Heusen "Vantage," the gay, frivolous Marty lived the life of carefree abandon. He could wear it and wear it—wash it—drip-dry it, or have it tumble-dried automatically—and wear it again in a matter of hours. It was the most money-saving love he ever had.

But when Marty was with one shirt, he missed the other. It was terrible. Like so many others with the same problem, Marty wrote to us. And so it came to pass that the Van Heusen "Century-Vantage" was born. This shirt combined the advantages of each into one great shirt—a wash and wear, no-iron, all cotton broadcloth shirt with the soft collar that won't wrinkle ever! And just $5! Have you a problem? # UK Baseballers 3-3 After Southern Trip

"Yes, I was pleased, but not satisfied," was Coach Harry Lancaster's summation of UK's first extended baseball trip South. The Wildcats played six games in as many days, which took them to Georgia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The Cats won three and lost three. The wins were over Georgia Teachers 8-0, South Carolina 12-7 and Maryville 6-2. Losses were inflicted by Georgia Teachers 3-2, South Carolina 2-1 and Wofford 14-9.

Coach Lancaster said he has 18 men who will help the club this year. He said the team is sound defensively, but the question mark, at this point, is offense. UK scored 38 runs in the six-game jaunt for an average of 6.3 runs per game.

Lancaster expressed satisfaction with the performances of pitchers Jim Host and Jerry Sharp. Host worked 19 innings, gave up four runs, two were earned and 13 hits. The Ashland native struck out 19 and walked five.

Sharp pitched nine and two-thirds innings, allowed one unearned run, two hits, five strikeouts and two free passes.

Dickie Parsons has picked up on the diamond where he left off on the hardwood and is hitting at a .315 clip. Dallas Reed, who was a weak slinger on last year's freshmen team, led the club with a healthy .429 mark.

Lancaster, who lost four men he was counting on for catching duties, said Bob Linkner, who was converted from a shortstop into a catcher, "is the best catcher I've coached since coming to UK."

Lancaster had praise for Ronald Bertsch, who has been hitting at a .612 clip. The Bellevue product hit the only home run on the trip South. Bertsch hit safely in five of 11 attempts at the plate.

Purdue Beats UK Golfers

Big Ten champion Purdue defeated UK's golfers 17-10 in the Cats' opener Monday at the Idle Hour Country Club.

Kentucky's John Kirk was the match's low medalist with a very respectable 69. It was Kirk's first match in intercollegiate competition.

John Konsec (60) and Bob Black (76), Purdue, beat Todd Livesay and Jim Berling (76), Kentucky, 7½-1½.

Ted Boots (75) and Gene Franks (70), Purdue, beat Lary Heath (71) and John Coday (80), Kentucky, 5½-3½.

John Kirk (69) and Jack Gallagher (89), Kentucky, beat Joe Stewart (71) and Harley Drake (72), Purdue, 5-4.

Five UK Seniors Receive Southern Fellowship Funds

The Southern Fellowships Fund has awarded grants to five UK seniors who plan to make a career of college teaching after earning doctor of philosophy degrees in their major subjects.

The recipients are Susan Darnell and Phoebe Estes both of Lexington, English; Charles M. Hudson, Frankfort, anthropology; Clay Ross, Lexington, mathematics and Charles Sampson, Louisville, mathematics.

Miss Darnell, Miss Estes, Hudson and Ross also were recently awarded Woodrow Wilson fellowships and Sampson was given a cooperative fellowship by the National Science Foundation.

The students may elect to take the Southern grant for all three years, or use the other fellowships for the first year, and the Southern for the last two.

Each of the Southern grants carries a dependency allowance where appropriate, full tuition fees for each of three years, and a total cash award of $4,500 for the three years.

According to Dr. Herman E. Spivey, dean of the Graduate School, the foundation, located at Chapel Hill, N. C., is "interested in college seniors with exceedingly high academic standings and aptitude and with a desire to prepare for college teaching."

The grants were awarded on a competitive basis.
